Four youths arrested in anti-graffiti sting

by Lindy Magner

Four youths were arrested last Saturday night after being caught in the act of painting graffiti on the Tri-City Glass Co. warehouse, located on Costabella Way.

According to Sgt. Doug Walters of the Lemon Grove Sheriff's Department Substation, a stakeout at the warehouse netted the juveniles who Walters surmises are taggers and not gang members.

"The stuff they were spray-painting doesn't look like anything related to a gang; I believe they are probably just a tagger crew, but we don't know for sure - they refused to tell us anything," said Walters.

The youths arrested include two 17-year-olds and two 16-year-olds, of which two are Morris High School students, one attends Granite Hills, and the other is a student at Point Loma High School, said Walters.

These arrests are the first to occur since the city's anti-graffiti urgency ordinance was adopted June 1.

According to City Manager Jack Shelver, he and Sheriff's Capt. Bill Flores will decide case-by-case whether the offenders will be prosecuted by the court system or assigned community service tasks instead.

"It's my understanding that we have two choices - we can prosecute them, in which case the judge will decide the fine, which can be up to $1,000 as stated in the ordinance. Or, we can handle it ourselves, requiring the 24 to 80 hours of community service stipulated in the ordinance," he said. The ordinance requires that for at least half of the community service time, a parent of the juvenile be present as well as pay for property damage.

Solid Waste - Round 2

City opts out of pact

With Mayor Brian Cochran absent, the Lemon Grove City Council again considered the pros and cons of guaranteeing the county 50 percent of Lemon Grove's solid waste for the next 20 years.

After failing to obtain enough committments to float a $60 million bond issue needed to expand or close the San Marcos dump, the county is seeking support for a new agreement.

And although the council had agreed to go along with the county last time, the absence of Cochran left the council deadlocked 2-2, and so the motion to go with the county was defeated.

Councilman Bob Burns, who had agreed to the first county pact, was the swing vote. Councilman Craig Lake remained opposed to agreeing to a 20-year, open-ended agreement.

Jesse Schmidtmann, Mt. Miguel's top student

When Mount Miguel High School holds its graduation ceremonies this evening, Jesse Schmidtmann, an honors student who plans a career as a pilot, will be leading the way.

A 4.6 grade-point average secured him the spot as class valedictorian, an honor which is not too surprising to a student who has always done well.

"It's nice that it happened; I worked hard in all my classes," said Schmidtmann, who always excelled in science and math.

Since his freshman year, he has played on the school's water polo team, this year, in the position of goalie. He noted that his interest for water polo came from watching his older brother, Erick, play on the school team.

"He had fun playing, so I wanted to try it," said Schmidtmann, who hopes to play on the team of the U.S. Naval Academy, where he has been accepted. He hopes that after his education is completed, he can serve as a Navy pilot, and hopes to eventually become an astronaut.

A Lemon Grove resident, he attended Mt. Vernon Elementary and Palm Middle schools.

Kiwanis Club awards scholarships

With principals from every local elementary and middle school present as well as superintendents from both the Grossmont Union School District and Lemon Grove School District, the Kiwanis Club's annual Dan Kunkel scholarship bonds were awarded June 9 to 11 students.

Following a lunch for the recipients and their parents held at a local restaurant, Kiwanis member and scholarship committee chairperson June Mott told of the importance of the awards which are named in honor of a late city councilman and Kiwanis member.

"Dan Kunkel was a man who valued children and saw them as the future of our country," she said. "We hope you, as recipients of the bonds, will always be a credit to your school, family and country, and always strive to be your best."

The bonds ranged from $50 for elementary students to $250 for high-school students.

Awards went to the following:

Lemon Grove Middle - Jason (Shelton) Blum; Palm Middle - Clint Skullerud; San Miguel Elementary - Cori Glenn-Hall; San Altos Elementary - Kimberly E. Leavitt; Monterey Heights Elementary - Catherine Lawson; Mount Vernon Elementary - Kathy Lam Hoang; Golden Avenue Elementary - Jennifer Lansville; Vista La Mesa Elementary - Candra Young; St. John of the Cross - Randy de la Cruz; Helix High School - Christopher Biere, and Mt. Miguel High School - Rey Acacio.

Catherine Norris named Helix valedictorian

by Cynthia O'Neill

Though 17-year-old Catherine Norris has tasted independence for the last year, she has demonstrated her firm belief in the work ethic.

"I've been living with a best friend ever since my family moved to North Carolina for work," said the Helix High School valedictorian. "I have a great desire to succeed, and my mom has encouraged me to do my best at academics."

Norris has only two more months to enjoy time with her friends before heading off to Yale University. "We all promise that we'll write and call each other, and a couple of us are even planning to spend our junior year abroad together. I don't know how realistic that will be, but we like talking about it," she said.

Tentatively, Norris will specialize in law or government. "But I'm glad I don't have to choose a major right away. I've been more of a humanities student and - oh, my math teacher is going to hate that I said this! - math and the sciences never really interested me," she confided.

Her English teacher, Mr. Bates, has been her favorite. "He was probably the first teacher able to connect on a more personal level with students. I feel like he's my friend. I've even promised to send him a Yale baseball cap," Norris smiled.

Immersing herself in a flurry of activities has been Norris's forté. "I was a cheerleader in my sophomore and junior years, and I've been busy with the Key Club. I'm in "Guys and Dolls," our school ensemble and show choir that performs for different events. Also, I was president of the Junior Statesmen of America, which is a nationwide club to make students more aware of political issues," she explained.

Indeed, the political problems of today concern Norris more than anything else. "The world my generation is about to enter is so complex. In my government classes, we have been discussing current events. It's kind of frightening, all the problems we're inheriting. And I'd urge my peers to value education and hard work. It's very competitive out there," Norris said solemnly.

But her eyes brightened, when she spoke about graduation night and the all-night party at the school. "It'll be great," she said.

The trucking of soil from the County Water Authority pipeline project to create two more playing fields at the Little League park adjoing Monterey Heights School should end almost any day, according to Mike Ott, Little League past president. However, there is still a need for about 20,000 more yards of soil, due to a revision of engineering plans which no longer call for cutting into the slope areas, he said. Filling in the canyon area adjacent to the current fields began last summer, with some monies from the city granted to help fund soil engineering costs. The dirt was donated, and the transporting of the dirt was done free of charge by the pipeline contractor. Ott is now in the process of applying for grant monies to fund the actual construction of the fields.

From Where I Sit

What is a library

by Frank Andrews

Most people think of our county libraries as just a place to read books or to check a book out. I can attest firsthand that the county library is much, much more (a storehouse of unlimited knowledge).

I went through this same ordeal of the library closing for the lack of sufficient funds when we lived in Oroville, Butte County, California in 1990 and '91. Butte county was ready for bankruptcy and the library was pegged with partial or even complete closing.

Through much effort from the locals, the "Friends of the Library," the Oroville Mercury-Register and lots of volunteer labor and cutting back of all hired help, the Butte County Library is today still operating at near full force.

I wrote a "letter to the editor" while I was living up there and it seemed to strike a nerve and did arouse some of the interested people. I was invited to a "Friends of the Library" breakfast to be recognized.

Some of the many, more unusual services and materials offered by our local branch of the San Diego County Library are books, magazines, videos, audio tapes, local newspapers, telephone books, story times, talking books, large-print books, books in foreign language - especially Spanish - and voter registration applications. Any book or information available in the county system but not in the branch library will be ordered special for the patron and will take a day or so.

People come to the library for much "do-it-yourself" information such as auto repair, recipes, songs, home repairs and decorating, pet care and much, much more.

Of all the county services offered to the public, the library is possibly one of the most valuable assets and should not be closed. We, the interested, can try to stop library closings by communicating with our public officials and let them know how we feel about this most important issue. Also contact the local president of the "Friends of the Library," Rosemary Putnam, at 466-5270 for her direction as to how we can help "save the library."

Count me in as to anything that I can do for the "cause."

Personal comments of Councilman Bob Burns

Sooner than later

No one is more tired of, and more disappointed by the continuing dissent on the present council than I am. The time wasted, and the polarization of the members, no matter what the issue, is not good for Lemon Grove. With the recent quick overturn of a decision regarding the choice of mayoral selection process, it is apparent that the friction will not be lessened until the people have actually spoken at the polls as to their choice of procedure. A directly elected mayor versus a continuation of the present basic process is the contest that will be resolved at the polls.

The present unanimous feeling of the council is that the people will have their say in an election scheduled in June of 1994, and if they wish, they will cast ballots for their own choice of mayor in June of 1996. This measure has been loudly endorsed by our present mayor and the entire council has agreed. This timetable will, however, prolong the issue for another three years. There is a solution that could shorten that period of animosity by two years, and still fullfill all of the presently stated desires of the council.

Governor Pete Wilson will shortly authorize a special election in November of this year. It has to do with a sales tax, the school voucher question, and probably another county measure or two.

This means that there will be a statewide election in every California precinct, and it also means that Lemon Grove could add a measure of its own. By combining with another group of measures, the cost of our participation is decidedly less than if we were to hold a special election for the one purpose only. If we did so, we would have to bear the full cost, estimated at $40,000. By combining, I understand it would bring the cost down to about the same as if we were to ask the question in a June general election such as '94, or '96.

My idea is to piggyback on the November election with the questions of: Shall we elect our own mayor?, and shall the term of office be for two or four years? This would give us the answer late in this year. If the people decide that they want to elect their own mayor, then they could make that choice at the following June election of 1994, a full two years before the present plan would provide. After 12 years delay in asking this question, I believe that it would be a prudent move to end the brouhaha once and for all, and the sooner the better.

We actually have until the first week of August to put this measure on the ballot. There is plenty of time for the council to do what it has declared should be done, only in a more timely fashion. I charge the city attorney to submit guidance as to the format, and the council to approve this accelerated timetable.

As so eloquently verbalized by Dr. Legerton, can we please have an end to the bickering over this very divisive issue? Here is an answer to all of the dissonance and inimical dialogue that has delayed the work of our city. Let us put this behind us, and go with the wishes of the citizens of Lemon Grove in continuing the positive things that have been our history since 1977. I am certain that we all want what the people want, and would submit that this plan can make that known in this, the most controversial question yet in our town.

REMEMBERING TRACY WITH BOOKS

Tracy Brooks was president of the Friends of the Lemon Grove Library when he died a year ago. He is being remembered at the library this month with a display of books purchased by the Tracy Brooks Memorial Fund. The books are displayed in the library's glass case and will be there through June 21, after which they may be checked out at the circulation desk. Babs Fletcher, Tracy's daughter, has loaned us some pictures of Tracy which are in the case also. It seems only right that one of the photos is of a smiling Tracy in the midst of a swirl of activity at a Friends' book sale. He was at the center of many a book sale.

Tracy was a nature-lover and enjoyed traveling, particularly into some of Mexico's less developed areas. The books selected in Tracy's name reflect those interests. The titles include:

"Land of the Eagle - A Natural History of North America" by Robert M. Peck.
"ABC's of Nature - A Family Answer Book" by Reader's Digest.
"The Miracle Planet" by Bruce Brown and Lane Morgan.
"¡Baja!" by Douglas Peacock, photographs by Terrence Moore.
"Vermilion Sea: A Naturalist's Journey in Baja California" by John Janovy, Jr.
"Temple of the Jaguar - Travels in the Yucatan" by Donald Schueler

The Friends thank the many people who donated to the Tracy Brooks Memorial Fund. Carol Stanley, librarian at our Lemon Grove branch, is delighted with these fine reference books for the library's collection.

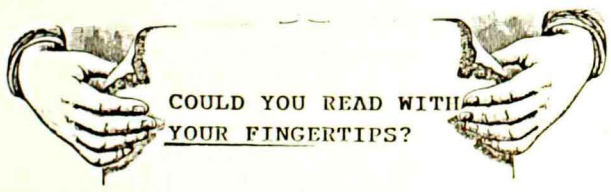
ACTION TAKEN BY FRIENDS OF THE LEMON GROVE LIBRARY IN MAY/JUNE

$200 was voted for purchase of new adult books for our library. Another $200 was voted to be spent for children's books.

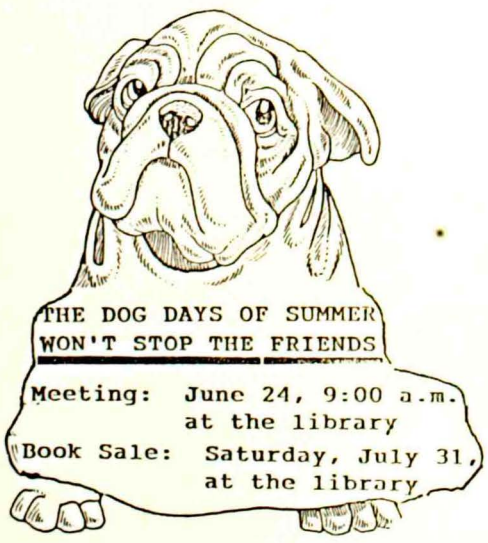
Diane Fanning contributed an additional $15 for purchase of a children's book on the life of Marco Polo. This has special meaning to Diane, who says the entire course of her life has been influenced by her contact with a good librarian when she was a child.

We have received white plastic bags with the message, "♡ my library" imprinted on one side; the blue logo of a reader on the other. The bags are attractive, perfect for carrying books, and deliver a message at the same time. We will sell them at 25 cents each. Children in the summer reading program will each receive one upon completion of the program, along with their prize book.

Bright yellow notices of the summer reading program went out to the children of Lemon Grove, kindergarten through grade 5, early in June. The Friends had 3,200 notices printed; most of them went to homes via the children in local public schools.



Materials written in Braille have been donated to the Friends of the Lemon Grove Library. They aren't suitable for circulation through the library and we haven't found the right person or place for them yet. Please leave a note in the Friends' box at the library if you know of someone who could use this material. It is at no cost. It is possible that classroom teachers might like to take some of the embossed sheets with their raised dot symbols for their students to experience or try to "read."



THE DOG DAYS OF SUMMER
WON'T STOP THE FRIENDS
Meeting: June 24, 9:00 a.m.
at the library
Book Sale: Saturday, July 31,
at the library

New members this month are Dianne Butcher, John H. Davis and family, John & Lucille Dramchak, Ruby Elkins & Family, Francis & Naomi Faucher, Karl & Lorraine Keckhut, Lemon Grove Historical Society, the Paul McCormick Family, John Slater, Mildred Stalnaker, and the Lemon Grove Moose Lodge. The Friends are delighted to welcome them.

John Slater goes back far enough that he remembers the Air Foilers, a model airplane club in which he participated, which had its flying field where Baltimore and Fletcher Parkway now intersect. John still has an interest in models; he was the owner of Hobby House and lived in La Mesa, where it was located. He was also a civilian employee at the Naval Training Center for 17 years.

Ruby Elkins' long history in Lemon Grove goes back to 1916, when she was born in a big white house (new then) on Broadway, on the site where Home Depot is being constructed now. North Avenue is where their pasture was then. Ruby's daddy always had the flag flying outside his home. He chopped the branches off a eucalyptus tree and that was his living, growing, flag pole, probably one of very few flag poles in the nation that needed to be pruned and trimmed periodically. The mural in our Lemon Grove Post Office pictures the house and the eucalyptus tree flag pole.

Ruby and her sister, Suzie, went to Lemon Grove schools and so did their children. The library was an important part of their lives; their librarian was Mrs. Hoover and Ruby remembers that she was very careful of what the children selected; she made certain that the books were suitable for them.

The two sisters, Ruby and Suzie, have had to make way for progress in Lemon Grove. The old house where they grew up was taken apart, board by board, and moved to Mexico, where its materials are being used to construct housing there. Their own property was taken by the city to make room for new construction on Broadway, and the sisters now have houses, side-by-side in a different area, but still in Lemon Grove, which Ruby says will always be her home.

Karl and Lorraine Keckhut came from the Detroit area to San Diego in 1980, then moved to Lemon Grove in 1986. Karl's career was with the Dayton-Hudson Co. - which became Mervyn's. Lorraine spent 33 years working for the federal government. Both are members (and Lorraine is treasurer) of Lemon Grove's Historical Society.

Paul McCormick is a returning member of the Friends; he and his wife were charter members of the group when it was first formed in Lemon Grove. They participated in the formation of the Art Association and the Historical Society at about the same time. The mobile lemon that has been refurbished and is once again a part of Lemon Grove's public events is named for Elizabeth McCormick. The McCormicks reared three children in Lemon Grove; they came here in 1946.

Francis and Naomi Faucher have been in Lemon Grove for almost 50 years; they raised four children here and now have nine grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. Frenchy was postmaster in Lemon Grove for 25 years; Naomi worked at the post office for 23 years. They have been enjoying their retirement and have traveled the length and breadth of the United States in their motorhome, including two trips to Alaska. They wore out their first motorhome and are now working on the second. Frenchy enjoys gardening and woodworking; Naomi is interested in photography and is now learning skills in the use of a video camera.

John and Gloria Davis came to Lemon Grove from Ohio via Wyoming and many other places over the span of John's 30-year career with the Veterans Administration. Two of their 12 children are living at home; the others are scattered throughout the country. Gloria was kept busy at home for many years but has been working for the Lemon Grove School District as a classroom aide for almost 10 years. She is at San Miguel School. John enjoys gardening, some fishing, and they both enjoy visits with their children and grandchildren.

Dianne Butcher, her husband, Jim, and brother, Peter Celestino, are partners in AAA Copy, a business which opened at 7455 Broadway a year ago in May. Dianne and her partners have helped with much of the copy work that the Friends have produced during the past year; their shop improves all the time and now provides working space and equipment for simple paperwork jobs that customers wish to do for themselves.

Dianne enjoys working with stained glass and she sings with the San Diego Chapter of Sweet Adelines. She and her family are new arrivals but are enjoying the climate and people here.

QUICK REVIEWS OF RECENT BOOKS

Mafia Wars by Leslie Waller

A reasonably good Mafia novel by Mr. Waller, who has written better. I find that you don't form many emotional ties with Waller's characters because, as in "The Family," most all end up dead anyway. You won't be disappointed here, either, as how better to "tie up the loose ends" than by blowing away the problem-maker or makers of the problem itself. Seriously, it's a long, drawn-out, leisure-time read where you can really read another novel, as well, without destroying your continuity. I liked it and will probably read the next one, too, but nothing above 7.7 in my little system. DP

Silent Prey by John Sandford

A slightly weird one with a real weirdo guiding you, makes for pretty intense reading. I'm not sure I'll run for his other two or three "Prey" tales, but I did hang into it until the "white hats" came through. All is pretty well pre-defined, so you just "pay your money," read away, and hope for the best. It might make a fair movie for the PTA to resist, so it can't be all bad. I laid it into the top quadrant but doubt that there will be any support from Danielle Steele fans. Have fun - DP

The Client by John Grisham

John Grisham's earlier novel, "The Firm," was such an adventure, filled with action, intrigue and suspense, I've waded through his more recent books for another like it. Though all well-written, the newer books have not had the razzle-dazzle I enjoy. In "The Client," I kept track of all the characters: the client and his family, the good lawyer, the bad lawyer, the Mafia, the hospital and its staff, the court and detention center - only the FBI agents tended to merge into faceless gray. All were well-described but after a promising start, the story didn't seem to go anywhere.

A pair of little boys attempt to stop a drunken man from committing suicide. The man almost succeeds in taking the older boy with him in his attempt to die, and at the same time he imparts a secret regarding a terrible crime. What is the boy to do? That's the theme of the book and it is a tale worth finishing. You'll be able to put it down at bedtime, though. Using Dwight's 1-10 scale, I'll give this one an 8.2.

Vermilion Sea - A Naturalist's Journey in Baja California by John Janovy, Jr.

John Janovy, a biologist from Nebraska, had a dream of seeing a live, wild whale. When chance presented him the opportunity of a field trip to Baja California, he dropped everything and went. This journal recounts his feelings, thoughts, questions, as he saw for the first time the unfamiliar, harsh landscape and the marine and desert creatures whose home is Baja. He has not written a travelogue, and he says he does not write "hard science," although he has a scientist's vocabulary, knowledge and academic background. What he does offer in these pages is his own wonder at seeing, touching and thinking about the wildlife he is viewing for the first time. And in his mind, the "life" includes the rocks that make up the mountains and the particles of shell that mix into sand, as well as humankind and coyotes and tube worms. His reflections and insights, presented as he becomes acquainted with this land of an unfamiliar terrain and language, will cause the reader to reflect, too, and think a little more deeply about the natural world and the constant evolution and adaptation of living creatures.

Letter to Louise - A Loving Memoir to the Daughter I Gave Up for Adoption More Than Twenty-Five Years Ago by Pauline Collins

In England in 1964 a young actress gave up her baby for adoption. The woman was Pauline Collins, who later became known to us as part of the cast of "Upstairs, Downstairs" in the role of a sweet-faced young maid. This poignant, often funny, memoir, written for her daughter, recounts the months before the baby's birth and reflects on the warm and loving family from whom she was determined to hide her pregnancy.

This little autobiography might have been a tear-jerker; instead, it is a straightforward account of a young woman's adventures as part of a repertory group touring in Ireland and of the friendship and romance that flourished there. When she discovered she was pregnant, she decided to go it alone, although the reckless young actor who was the baby's father, offered marriage. She does not dwell on the bleak parts of the following months, as she concealed her pregnancy from her large, loving, Catholic family, enveloped herself in oversized, shapeless clothing, and finally entered a Sisters of Nazareth home for unwed mothers. She supported herself, struggled with her options, and finally made the decision that she must allow the baby to go to the adoptive family waiting for her.

This may not be great literature; it reads like a letter from a friend, someone who has gone through tough times without self-pity. If Collins writes a sequel covering the next 25 years of her life, I'd like to read that, too. 8.9 MC

City Council

The council is not scheduled to meet again before the county's June 23 ultimatum to sign or pay higher tipping fees. The action could result in higher fees beginning July 1, but could also force the county to offer a better deal. The city would also keep open its options for future years, when cheaper alternatives may become available.

In other action, the council upheld the action of the planning commission in denying an appeal by Agostino Zolezzi regarding conditions established when the commission approved his development of a convenience market and self-service car wash at 8190 Broadway.

Nearby residents spoke against the project, as did Karen Zaustinsky of the Lemon Grove Prevention Project.

Grossmont Union High School District news

by June M. Mott, Board member

It's good to be back again after doing battle with a stubborn, long-lasting respiratory virus which attacked many people.

At its June 10 meeting, the Governing Board recognized 51 retirees from the classified, certificated and management staffs at a short reception following the award of a plaque to each retiree for his/her service.

Following the reception, the Board reconvened at 8 p.m. to deal with 64 items on the regular agenda. One of the items dealt with exempting tenth grade students who complete a minimum of two interscholastic sports activities in grades 10/11. No credit would be awarded for this. The core ninth-grade P.E. program would remain as is with no alternative courses or programs to be accepted as a substitute. Courses currently approved for alternative credit for P.E. (ROTC and dance) would continue to be approved through 1993-94.

The core curriculum in P.E. should be revised during 1993-94 as well as all P.E. courses, according to the ad hoc committee which made the recommendations. The Ed Code allows the Governing Board to exempt "any 4-year or senior high school student from attending courses in P.E., if that student is taking part in a regular school-sponsored interscholastic athletic program carried on wholly or in part after regular school hours."

P.E. teachers, joined by Dr. Wright, (in the audience) opposed the proposal, saying that regular, academic P.E. is important to lifelong health habits. Also cited in opposition was a letter to the Board from Charles Downing, a professional science educator, who said that accepting programs run by non-credentialed coaches for one season is not equal to programs run by credentialed teachers on a daily basis. He felt that credential requirements were being arbitrarily applied, that it was completely inappropriate, and outside the bounds of good conscience and good educational practice, that a subject whose new framework of instruction specifically encourages teaching skills for lifelong teaching would be turned over to non-credentialed personnel." The Board split on the vote: Ada Reep, Mike Harrelson, and Maynard Olson voted in favor; Tom Davies and June Mott voted against the proposal.

Also considered by the Board was the increase in summer school core offerings. At the heart of this issue was whether summer school should be continued on a 7- or a 6-week basis, plus increased offerings in core subjects such as math. The Board concluded that any changes in duration (from seven to six weeks) would be chaotic since summer school will begin in two weeks. Members expressed approval of adding math - as needed. A committee will be formed soon to study the impact of reducing the length of summer school and an increase in core offerings for 1994.

Approval was granted by the Board for a Home Choice Independent Study Program beginning in September and employing teacher(s) on a 5/5 special assignment to implement the program for 1993-'94. Michael Harrelson voted no.

Two legal solutions to the growing public interest in home school and/or independent study options provides a parent with the option of filing an appropriate Private School Affadavit with the San Diego County Office of Education, or elect to enroll his child in an established independent study program under the general supervision of a bonafide school district. Currently, there are more than 1,000 students in grades K - 8, enrolled in independent study programs in San Diego County. Many parents wish to continue this alternative to full-time high school enrollment.

Course work in this independent program would meet diploma track needs and also college prep requirements. Three apparent advantages of such a high school program are as follows: it speaks to parents' desires to share in the responsibility of educating their students at home; it provides a legitimate school of enrollment with documented grades acceptable to colleges on an official transcript; and it provides continuity of instruction consistent with graduation requirements and state curriculum frameworks.

The overall fiscal impact of this program is unknown at this time. However, with the addition of this alternative, the Grossmont District now offers 20 alternatives to its 10 comprehensive high school offerings. Further information can be obtained by calling the District at 465-3131.

Board Policy 6141.6, dealing with multi-cultural education, was approved by the Board. This policy states that the District fosters an educational climate that will result in the elimination of institutional and personal practices that foster attitudes and/or actions leading to discrimination against students, parents, guardians or school personnel. an approved

Textbook adoptions for 1993-'94 were also approved as was an application between the District and Harmonium, Inc. to provide counseling service, to high-risk students at Mt. Miguel High School. Harmonium, a non-profit agency, has submitted a grant to the San Diego Department of Social Services and the California Office to Criminal Justice to work with 14-17-year-olds.

Other actions approved were:

1. Granite Hills' High School Exchange Program students to Hagan, Frankfurt, Heidelberg, Munich and St. Goace, Germany. Costs are covered by the student participants and the German-American Partnership Program.

2. Mt. Miguel's Roberto Leal and Amy Littlepage were each awarded $2,000 from the Richard Ridgeway Memorial Scholarship Trust Fund. El Capitan's Angela Tauriainen and Grossmont's Jeffrey Bender each received $1,500 scholarships from the Jack Mashin Athletic Scholarship Fund.

3. The establishment of a Ruth Cleveland Memorial Scholarship Trust Fund to award scholarships to graduates of the Las Colinas program who enroll in college orvocational training school after their release from custody.

Other related items will be dealt with after the June 24 Board meeting.
